DEAR MERCURY COMMUNITY

We are thrilled to share the final newsletter, which marks the end of our journey together, celebrating the achievements and impact that will continue to resonate beyond the project's official completion.

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR YOUTH WORKERS

As we conclude the Mercury project, we are proud to highlight our efforts in empowering young people through entrepreneurship. Our latest initiative provided youth workers with practical recommendations on creating safe spaces and fostering resilience, equipping young entrepreneurs with the skills, mindset, and support needed to navigate challenges and build sustainable ventures. This achievement reflects our commitment to inclusive, long-term impact, ensuring that young people continue to thrive in their entrepreneurial journeys.

LOCAL MULTIPLIER EVENTS

As part of the MERCURY project, local multiplier events were successfully carried out, bringing together 80+ youth workers, educators, community stakeholders, and young people to showcase the project's outcomes. These events provided a platform for sharing best practices, engaging discussions on entrepreneurship and resilience, and fostering collaboration at the local level. Through interactive workshops and presentations, participants explored the project's digital tools and learning methods, ensuring wider dissemination and long-term impact within their communities.

FINAL TPM IN BELGRADE

The final transnational partner meeting in Belgrade on March 18-19 marked a crucial moment for the MERCURY project, as the team gathered to evaluate its overall impact and refine strategies for implementing the developed toolkit in youth work practice. Through in-depth discussions, partners assessed key achievements, identified areas for improvement, and explored ways to ensure the toolkit's long-term usability and transferability. This meeting reinforced the project's commitment to empowering young people through innovative approaches, setting the stage for future collaborations and wider dissemination of results.

Thank you to all our partners, participants, and supporters for your dedication and collaboration in making the MERCURY project a success!
